

Freedom School Pupils

www.ligali.org

These pupils from Hattiesburg, 11 July 1964 were part of the Freedom Summer project which organised thirty 'Freedom Schools' throughout Mississippi. They focused on leadership training with a curriculum that included reading, mathematics and African American history. Educating over three thousand pupils, these educational institutions, which were spawned by social protest, played a critical role as working models for future alternative and supplementary schools across the United States.
